MEMORIAL—Portraits of the late Moses H. Cone and his wife, Bertha Lindau Cone, hang in the entrance lobby of the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Julius Cone, shown at right, whose late husband was president of Cone Export and Commission Company (now Cone Mills Inc.) observed the canvasses in the progress of the painting by the distinguished New York artist, Leopold Seyffert. Also approving the paintings while being completed were Benjamin Cone and Saul F. Dribben of New York, president of Cone Mills Inc., and a former associate of Moses H. Cone, who was the first president of the Cone selling agency.

CONE FABRICS—Draperies in patient rooms are of Cone fabrics, sateens from Dwight Division in Gasden, Ala. They are of pine cone and needle design and are in medium bright tones. Conference rooms have Cone corduroy draperies.

103 YEARS SERVICE—These five members of the Clayton family of Haw River have a total of 103 years service with the Granite Plant of Cone Finishing Company. Joe W. Clayton, center, who on February 14 celebrated his 80th birthday, has been a Cone employee for 23 years. The fact is that he has been at the Granite mill for 53 years, having come before it was a Cone plant. His son, Roy, at left, has been an employee there for 21 years; son J. C., second, has been there for 18 years; Mrs. J. C. Clayton (Bertha) has 19 years service, and Floyd, 22 years. Here they look at some of the Cone corduroy they helped produce.

Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital Tribute To Cone Mills Co-Founder

Last Wednesday marked the opening to patients of the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital. The hospital had received approximately 10,000 visitors during open house on Friday afternoon, Saturday and Sunday afternoon. The institution is a tribute by his wife, the late Bertha Lindau Cone, to Moses H. Cone, a co-founder of Cone Mills Corporation, who died in 1908.

Board Has Met Since 1913

Although the work involved in the actual building of the hospital has taken place within the last five years, the board of trustees of the institution has met annually since 1913. Definite plans for the hospital were announced the day after the death of Mrs. Cone on June 8, 1947, at her summer home at Blowing Rock.

Following the wishes of Mrs. Cone, the $5,000,000 hospital is the most modern in the South. In architecture, construction and equipment the building has no peer.

History Significant

History of the founding of the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital is of great significance to the people of this area and to the nation as a whole. This institution memorializes a pioneer textile industrialist who did not live to see the great materialization of his vision and labors. It was some years after his death that the Cone Mills stockholders received their first dividends and still many more years later that the textile firm had grown to be one of the largest and most important in the world.

Credit to Free Industry

By bequeathing to this area the construction of a well-equipped, modern hospital, Mrs. Cone has not only memorialized her husband but has taken her place, along with other members of her family, among the revered philanthropists of the nation whose benefactions have been made possible through the results of free industry.

Enterprising Brothers

Moses H. Cone and his brother Ceasar Cone, natives of Jonesboro, Tenn., started out as wholesale grocery salesmen for their father's firm, H. Cone and Sons, in Baltimore. In 1890, they went into business for themselves as textile salesmen, establishing the Cone Export and Commision Company of New York, with Moses Cone as president.

In 1893, the Cone brothers started plans for a textile mill in Greensboro, and in 1896, founded the Proximity Mill, the beginning of the Cone Mills Corporation which today consists of 21 plants.

It was about that same time that the Cones opened a division of their New York sales office here.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses Cone started their Blowing Rock Estate about 1893.

Hospital Chartered

At his death in 1908, Mrs. Cone decided to establish a hospital as a memorial to her husband, and the corporation charter was issued May 29, 1911.

The state Legislature passed an act in 1913 approving the founding of the hospital. Mrs. Cone conveyed to the corporation the approximately 67 acres off North Elm Street, the Cone estate at Blowing Rock and all stocks in Proximity Manufacturing Company and Summit Avenue Building Corporation which she received at the death of her husband who did not leave a will.

Mrs. Cone stipulated in the founding of the hospital that it was not to be built until after her death and that the principal office of the corporation would be located in Greensboro.

Original Incorporators

The original incorporators of the hospital were Mrs. Bertha Cone, Blowing Rock; Miss Etta Cone, Baltimore, Md.; Ceasar Cone, Bernard M. Cone and Robert R. King, Sr., all of Greensboro; John M. Barnhardt, Lenoir; George W. Watts and H. A. Foushee, both of Durham; R. A. Doughton, Sparta, and James H. Pou, Raleigh.

The value of the estate which was left to the hospital at the death of Mrs. Cone was estimated at $15,000,000 by Herman Cone, president of the hospital's board, at the cornerstone laying ceremony in May, 1951. The remaining endowment was bequeathed in turn by Ceasar Cone, Dr. Claribel Cone, Frederic Cone and Miss Etta Cone, brothers and sisters of Moses H. Cone.

Present Board

The present board of trustees consists of Herman Cone, president; Ceasar Cone, vice president; Joseph S. Lichty, M.D., secretary; N. S. Calhoun, treasurer; Howard Holderness, assistant treas-

Joe W. Clayton Of Granite Plant Has 80th Birthday

"He hadn't been absent from his work in 12 years until last week when the flu bug got him," stated P. C. Beatty, superintendent of Granite Plant of Cone Finishing Company, Haw River, in discussing Joe W. Clayton, who had his 80th birthday on Valentine's Day.

"But I'm not going to miss any more days at work," twinkeled the spry Mr. Clayton who has been at the mill for 53 years, 23 of which he has been a Cone employee.

His superintendent also wonders how he learned to figure so well, since just any problem you give him isn't too much.

Mr. Clayton, Caswell County native, thinks children this day in time have it a great deal easier than when he was a youngster in Person County where he walked miles to various log school houses located in the woods.

"If a child today doesn't get an education, it's the child's fault or his parents'," declares the white-haired gentleman.

In 1900, when he was 27 years old, Joe Clayton came to Haw River to work in the dye house of the old Holt Granite Mill. When the mill was bought by the Williamson family some years later, he stayed on and for three years was a watchman. When the mill became a Cone plant, Mr. Clayton was employed to look after dry cans in the Pickering Room, his present job.

Three of his five children are Granite employees, and what's more they are all supervisors. Floyd is overseer of the Cutting Room on second shift; Roy, the Pickering Department, and J. C., Packing and Shipping. J. C.'s wife, Bertha, has charge of sending out the salesmen's samples.

Mr. Clayton has two daughters,

Local Pythian Lodge Honors Cone Family

Knights of Pythias, Cone Lodge 158, held a dinner meeting at White Oak YMCA last Saturday night commemorating the 89th anniversary of the founding of the Pythian Order and honoring the Cone family, many of whom are members of the lodge. Mayor Robert H. Frazier spoke on "Pythianism and the Cone Family," or "Friendship and Leadership." Herman Cone accepted a certificate from the Pythians honoring his family for distinguished service. William B. Burke, supreme representative from North Carolina to the Supreme Lodge, presented the citation and was master of ceremonies.

Tracing the history of the accomplishments of the Cone family in Greensboro, Mayor Frazier called them "viewers of vision and doers of deeds." In this instance he referred to the planning of the Cone Mills community streets, as an example. He complimented them for adhering to the ways of the community of Greensboro and helping it to grow industrially and culturally.

Mayor Frazier praised the founders of Cone Mills for their great personal relationship between themselves as employers and the employees of the plants, making for a solidity between them which was practically unknown in other early mills in the South.

"The Cone family has not only recognized material values but has more importantly recognized values in men," declared the mayor.

The framed certificate which was presented to the Cone family by the lodge is worded as follows:

"Certificate of Award presented to the Cone Family in honor and deep appreciation of the distinguished and unselfish community service in Greensboro, N. C., since the year 1893. Cone Lodge No. 158, Knights of Pythias, February 21, 1953." The certificate is signed by Ernest Lee Robertson, chancellor commander, and William Carson Rhew, secretary.

In accepting the certificate, Mr. Cone declared, "It imposes a great responsibility on those of us who carry on now and those who will come as those who carried on before us."

He recalled that his two uncles, the late Clarence Cone and Julius Cone, were members of the Cone Lodge along with three former superintendents, Jim Bangle, Tom Gardner and Lonnie Barnes, and two former managers, J. E. Hardin and Hill Hunter.

Mr. Cone referred to the fact that his father, the late Ceasar Cone, and uncle, the late Moses Cone, who founded the Cone Mills, tried to inculcate the idea that the important thing in business is kindness and friendship.

"This lodge has always been one of the greatest assets of the community, always trying to show the community to advantage," Mr. Cone asserted.

He stated that the certificate will have a place in the company "museum" in the main lobby of the office building at Proximity.

Two past chancellors, Thomas Moss and Louis Tweedell, received past chancellor pins. They were presented by Dr. A. C. Chamberlain of North Wilkesboro, grand chancellor of the North Carolina Lodge of Knights of Pythias.

Rev. R. Murphy Williams pronounced the invocation. Dinner music was by television personality, Bill Jeffries. Melvin Oakes entertained the audience with his magic.

Among the out-of-town guests were Superintendent of the Pythian Home Dewey Huggins and Mrs. Huggins, Clayton; Grand Vice

Greensboro Dailies' Editorials Praise Cone Memorial

Both the Greensboro Daily News and the Greensboro Record this week carried editorials on the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital.

Stated the Daily News (in part):

"The Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital . . . is a contribution of immense and abiding value to the general welfare of the Greensboro community.

"The Daily News is satisfied that it expresses the sentiment of the Greensboro area when it voices the gratitude of the people to the Cone family, and all who have worked with them over the years, for a great and needed institution which has grown out of realistic generosity and which will for generations alleviate the sufferings of 'all sorts and conditions' of men, women and children who enter its doors.

"The Cone Hospital is indeed a fine and living memorial to a family which Greensboro and North Carolina have long held in highest esteem."

The Record editorial states (in part):

"Enhancing the significance of any memorial is the manner and degree in which it serves a practical, as well as sentimental purpose. This dual purpose has been fully served in the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital.

". . . Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital is also a reminder of the contributions made to the development and progress of Greensboro and its area by the Cone family."

Dr. Frank Berry Speaks To Y's Men

Dr. Frank X. Berry, who has recently opened practice in Greensboro as a specialist in gynecology and obstetrics, was guest speaker for the meeting of Proximity Y's Men's Club last Tuesday night. Dr. Berry discussed brotherhood from the viewpoint of the medical profession.

He upheld the ideals of the medical profession in not discriminating against anyone because of race, creed, color or lack of funds.

Dr. Berry is one of the 13 children of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Berry of Greensboro.

Fay Gilbert, physical director of Cone Memorial YMCA, asked the Y's Men to volunteer to assist in the basketball tournament now going on at the Y's.

The next meeting will be on March 17 at 6:00 p.m., and will be the annual bean supper to honor all participants in the junior basketball tournament.

Visitor was Joe Berry, brother of Dr. Berry.

Follow Such A Move

Tax-weary North Carolinians are being shocked by the news from down Raleigh way. There is talk around the state capital about the need for higher taxes.

There is room for grave concern over the prospect of higher taxes in North Carolina. Even those who conscientiously endorse better programs for the care of unfortunate citizens are beginning to back up just a little bit after reading the comments about higher taxes to meet the budget.

Taxes in North Carolina are already relatively high. If they continue to increase, the state will defeat the very program it desires to effectuate, namely, bringing in more business in order to spread the tax basis. In fact, if the taxes were increased appreciably, North Carolina might witness an exodus of business from the state.

Just at this time when the national administration is giving evidence of an efficiency and economy move, it would indeed be appropriate for our state to follow such a move. It would appear that there would be no better time to evaluate the spending by the state government. The absolutely essential, the advisable, and that which we could get along without should be separated. Consolidation of all functions where possible should be made.

If a program of efficiency and economy were truly pursued, it is entirely probable that the increased facilities that are needed in certain directions may be forthcoming without burdening the taxpayers in North Carolina.

Pythian Echoes

by R. Cole Lee

Saturday evening approximately 200 Pythians, their wives, and many friends heard with extreme delight Mayor Robert Frazier, in commemorating its 89th anniversary, trace briefly the history of the Pythian Order. As he, Pythian Frazier, proceeded in his praise of the Order, gradually there was weaved into his speech the subject more familiar to all of us—the Cone Family. He revealed that the present generation of the family were great because they were linked with a group of greatness, meaning of course the entire family. He classified the family as "viewers of visions and doers of great deeds," men of sterling character who recognized values in material things but above all the value of men. To this I wish to inject a personal feeling as on that night we gave honor to whom honor was so rightly due. I would add by saying here is a family entirely blameless in private and business life, a group unspotted in reputation, chivalrous in spirit, reverent believers in the sublime truths of Christianity, lovers of their fellow-beings, honest and courteous.

Pythian John E. Walters, sheriff, and Pythian Frank Herrin are patients in the St. Leo's Hospital. Pythian Jesse Wheeler is back home after spending several weeks at the Veterans' Hospital in Richmond.

James G. Smith has submitted has application for membership. His initiatorial work will start after next Monday evening when the Lodge completes the third degree work with Henry S. Stanley.

The Lodge has voted to sponsor again this Spring and Summer the Little League baseball team with Pythian Ray Payne as head coach.

Sunday afternoon I went out to view, as did thousands, the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital, the new contribution to our community by the illustrious Cone family. As I viewed with great interest this magnificent structure dedicated to the task of alleviating suffering and restoring health, I couldn't help but feel that here is another generous gift from a wonderful family, a great blessing to the community from a noble group who have unselfishly built schools, YMCA's, churches of all faiths, and now a new hospital for the community that they had selected in 1893 as their home. As we seek to catalogue the many good things this one family has done for our community in making it a better place to live, a more prosperous section, I am inclined to think that the people as a whole should strive to show appreciation for what has been done for their good by thinking nobly and acting courteously in every possible way. Remember, we all can't be in the position to do such wonderful deeds but we all can reflect our character and being by being grateful.

FOR THE GROWING Art of Healing--

We are proud of the new Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital—a fine addition to Guilford County and the growing art of healing. Many other Piedmont towns have dedicated new hospitals within recent months, and others are bringing old ones up to date and adding to health facilities. Good facilities, in turn, attract good doctors to our progressive communities.

In all these hospitals, clinics, and other medical units, electricity is a day and night "member of the staff"—silent, busy, efficient. In the laboratories where miraculous new medicines have been perfected, electricity has played a steady, unfaltering part, running machines that develop or differentiate new sources of healing, lighting the scientist at his tests, and powering the sensitive, complex apparatus of his laboratory. In hospital routine, Electricity sterilizes, makes x-ray, cardiagraph, and fluoroscope function . . . floods with brilliance the surgeon's table . . . aids nurse, technician and doctor in countless unceasing tasks of restoring health and saving life.

These multiplying calls for power in one highly specialized group are typical of the increase in demand for power in every phase of life in the Piedmont Carolinas — professional, domestic, commercial, agricultural, and industrial.

What is the Duke Power Company doing to meet this unprecedented demand?

It has built and is building additions to its electric generating, transmission and distribution facilities that will by next year bring the system capability to 10,250,000,000 kwh annually, two and one-half times the maximum output required in any year during World War II.

Red Cross Is Your Representative

Everyone wants to help someone else when disaster, illness or accident strikes—but we seldom know when these needs arise—or the help we can give cannot begin to do the job. That's where your Red Cross does the job for you—making it possible for you to be there when someone needs help. Every day in almost 4,000 chapters throughout the country, hundreds of emergencies are met skillfully and efficiently through your Red Cross.

Now, as the Red Cross Fund Campaign month of March arrives, you are given the opportunity to join with the vast army of Red Cross contributors in our nation to assure help when needed throughout the coming year. With a local goal of $96,700 and a national goal of $93 million, your gift to your friends and neighbors in distress may be made through your Red Cross Chapter.

LAUNDRY—This scene in the laundry of the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital shows the automatic 350-pound washers.

KITCHEN SCENE—This is a section of the central kitchen on the ground floor of the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital.

You can have a part in assisting a serviceman's wife and baby until the delayed allotment check arrives. You can work side by side with the field director at the military base and the home service worker in the chapter gathering the facts for the serviceman whose mother is dying in a local hospital . . . the facts that mean the verification the military needs to grant the emergency furlough. You can relief the anxiety of a worried mother whose boy lies injured in a remote Army field hospital by securing information on his injuries and progress.

When floods or tornadoes strike, rendering families helpless and destitute, you can reach out to them with food, clothing, shelter and medical care and help them rebuild their lives again. Through your Red Cross and its corps of trained disaster workers and skilled volunteers you can do the job that's needed, when it is needed.

Through your Red Cross you can help to teach hundreds of mothers the skill of home nursing so they may better care for their families when sickness hits their homes.

When a soldier lies wounded and dying on the battlefield you can be humble and grateful that you, through your Red Cross, could be sure the blood and plasma was there to save his life. In the stark whiteness of an operating room in your local hospital, the bottle of blood with its brave Red Cross emblem, slowly empties its contents into the veins of the patient srugling for life. Through your Red Cross Blood Program you are there witnessing the new miracle of modern medicine.

A youngster fishing happily in his tiny boat tumbles into the waiting waters—tragedy stalks, but is averter when quickly a Red Cross trained volunteer lifesaver plunges into rescue the child and with proper Red Cross techniques restores the still body to consciousness — the pulse to normal — you are there through your Red Cross.

What other single contribution enables you to help so many of your fellow men—in so many varied ways—every day of the year? Plan now to give generously to the volunteer Red Cross Fund campaigner when he stops at your desk or knocks on your door this coming March.

CARD OF APPRECIATION

The family of Mrs. T. M. O'Brien wish to thank the friends and neighbors for their many kind expressions of sympathy during her recent illness and death.

Health For All

THE SAFE WAY

Before the discovery of the X-ray in 1895, diagnosis of tuberculosis was largely a matter of chance. Too often the diagnosis was made after the disease was in an advanced stage and hope for recovery slim.

But today the X-ray has made possible the early discovery of tuberculosis. If there are signs of tuberculosis in the lungs, the chest X-ray will reveal them. If the lungs are clear and healthy, the chest X-ray will show that, too.

A chest X-ray is quick and painless. It takes but a few seconds. All you do is stand in front of the machine, take a deep breath, and it's all over. There is no discomfort or annoyance. You don't even have to undress. It can't do you any harm. The only possible harm lies in not having a chest X-ray.

It is those of us who do not have a chest X-ray once a year who are taking chances. By not having chest X-rays, many of us leave to chance the state of our own health, the health of our families, of our neighbors, of our community.

Tuberculosis is an insidious disease which strikes without obvious outward symptoms. It is spread from person to person, by those who have the disease. As many as 265,000 persons with active tuberculosis can easily be spreading TB in the United States today, according to the 1951-52 Annual Report of the National Tuberculosis Association.

Many of these persons do not know that they have TB or that they are spreading it to others. Chest X-rays will help find them. To help protect all of us, every adult 15 years and older should have a chest X-ray once a year. You can have TB without knowing it, but a chest X-ray can detect it early, when it is easiest to cure.

A diagnosis of tuberculosis is never made on the basis of X-ray films alone. If the film shows an unusual condition in the chest, other tests are made to determine whether TB is present.

A chest X-ray once a year is the safe way of making sure that, if you do have TB, the disease will be discovered early, when recovery is the rule. If you don't have tuberculosis, the X-ray will show that, too. It's the safe way of making sure.

The Foremen—Key To Your Safety Program

The foremen should see that every job is made as safe as possible for the workers under him. He must see that the tools, machines, etc, are in good working condition. On work that continually changes, he must study the job at hand and look for hazards as work progresses. By all means, he should insist on good housekeeping.

Counseling with workers about their work habits is one of his biggest jobs. The development of safety consciousness among all workers is an important job of the foremen. He must train each employee how to do each job safely. The employees will work more safely if they understand their work, therefore, the foremen must explain the purpose of new jobs and why a particular procedure is the safest.

Respect or concern for the other fellow is important. Safety in teamwork can be promoted by a discussion of its benefits. The supervisor can handle chronic offenders and accident repeaters privately in an endeavor to explain good safe work habits. Explain to the workers the benefits derived from a good safety program.

The safety program should be handled as other features of the business that must be performed at the job level. Management recognizes the importance of safety, makes plans concerning it and trains the line organization to properly execute those plans. The results of such a program rests in the hands of the foremen or supervisor who has the immediate responsibility for results.

Visitors who are connected with Cone Mills were interested especially in learning that the draperies in the patient rooms are Cone fabrics, Dwight sateens. These are identified by the design of pine cones and needles. Conference room draperies are of Cone corduroy.
